

Do your research!

Pilot Network

Pilot network are an impartial review site for flight schools.

Current trainee pilots can review and rate their flight school, and provide aspiring pilots with the opportunity to make an informed decision about where they do their training.

They have interactive guides so you can do your research based on whether you want to train commercially, recreationally or for the military. With a complete and up to date directory of ATO's across Europe, you can really get an understanding of what is on offer, by seeing the courses available and reviews from current or past students.

There is also a Verified Training Provider Scheme, ensuring ATO's on the site are accurate and up to date in regard to bases, courses offered, costs and fleet.

We recommend that before you embark on your pilot training, you do as much research as possible and hearing from previous flight school students should be part of that process.
